Invitation letter to authors

Dear Colleagues... Authors

It is our pleasure and honor to invite you, on behalf of the Sociological Discourse Scientific Association and the Sociological Discourse Journal (UDC 316(05), ISSN 2232-867X (Print), e-ISSN 2637-2878), to the extent that you are interested, to write for the Sociological Discourse Journal. The Journal has been published for 11 years twice a year, some years as a double issue, in B/H/S languages and in English too by the publisher of the Sociological Discourse Scientific Association, as an independent association of professors, scientists and researchers in the field of Social Sciences. The Journal is present on the citation databases ERIH PLUS, CEEOL, EBSCO, Google Scholar, DOI Srpska (which is visible on the website: <https://www.sociologicaldiscourse.com/>)

It is known that sociology is a fundamental social science, but it is also the most general generalizing social science, and therefore, especially in the era of social informatics within the digital space, its basic weft - the sociological method is becoming more and more present in Natural and Technical Sciences. Nothing is more important than the orientation in which society, for which society the entire very powerful field of natural and technical sciences works today. That is why the question arises: To what extent is it possible to track and see off all this socially turbulent digital dynamics through the prism of social relations, phenomena and processes, and that in the format of a scientific article which are dealt with by scientific disciplines such as: sociology, philosophy, psychology, pedagogy, anthropology, political science, social work, journalism and communication, legal sciences, criminology, defense, ponerology and other scientific disciplines.

The scientific journal Sociological discourse strives to continuously monitor current trends, analyzes and research in the afore-mentioned areas, as its primary goals. But the sociological imagination is not limited only to workers within the social sciences, because the global transition to an informational society certainly opens up space for the "analytical eye" and the perception of new - technical-technological actors and workers in this field, but who are still in analog - the vital and motivating point of view of human and communal space/temporal communication, so they build their "here and now", which, we hope, will not be isolated and under the pressure of a large degree of alienation, which as such is already largely producing pathology of unprecedented proportions in humanity. Therefore, there is nothing better than establishing good communication between people who participate in our common goal of creating conditions for a more humane environment.

You can also find instructions for writing a paper on <https://www.sociologicaldiscourse.com/>, but an essay, polemic or dialogue form of two or more participants on a topic you consider important will certainly be welcome.
